The first update in a while

!! UPDATES!! - I know that's a bit vague but there has been a lot that's happened since I have last updated this website. So I have taken it spin myself to get a new design and new content to put on here.

I have currently been a bit overworked and that is why I have not really posted anything on here at all. There is also one other reason, I am now a father, my son was born three days before my birthday 18.07.18 at 4AM in the morning. I can not wait for what being a dad has to come. I have gone and booked two holidays including taking him to disneyland florida and spain next year. Those little moments literally mean everything to me. So today this is going to be a bit of a long post compared to what was on this site previously.

I have been working on a few things in the last few months one of them being a transfer to my old job at Carphone warehouse and a few others. I have past my theory test, which means I have one more practical test before I am legally able to drive on the road. I so can not wait for this! No more busses!

Other than that a lot of what I have been working a lot more than normal. I just got a new piece of tech in my life as well. I have a new tablet wich if i am honest was well needed my last tablet was the IPad 2, I will talk about the tablet and how I use it in another post but at the moment you guys need to get caught up. I am struggling to get the time to do things like this sitting down and writting out a blog post.